

BOURBON STOMP SPEAKERS SCORE ADMINISTRATION

Mayor Lane's Entertainment Expenditures Criticized at Two Meetings

Republican incumbents in city and county offices were raked over the coals and thoroughly scored at two well-attended primary campaign meetings held last night by the Democratic candidates—one at the Liliuokalani school and the other at Moiliili.

The Bourbon office seekers are well organized with regard to their campaign. It is the general plan to hold two meetings each night and the candidates, as soon as they speak at one meeting, go immediately to the other, where from Mayor Lane's much-repeated and unimpressive remarks are the purported inefficiency of the present board of supervisors, personal attacks are being eliminated to a considerable degree.

Benevides On Stump

A. J. Jones presided at the Moiliili meeting and Hugo Kane and Frank Benevides, candidates for supervisors, were the first speakers. Benevides said that, if he was elected, he would not let the board answer all petitions promptly. "We will tell the people right away if we can help them," he declared, "and, if we can't, we will tell them why."

Herbert M. Ayres, also a candidate for the board of city and county officers, scored the present administration on the ground that it is inefficient.

The Democrats have given Honolulu the best administration it has ever had," he asserted, "and the present board of supervisors has given us the worst administration. The Republican administration has been extravagant, inefficient and incompetent."

They have built up some roads, but they have not been good roads. They have paved a lot of roads over the city to encourage the voter—but they have not kept up these roads.

Roads Are Paved

A Democratic board will not promise to pave roads all over the city. "This would be too big a job," he said, "where roads are needed they will be given and they will be built to last."

Ayres went on to declare that the upkeep of Mayor Lane's auto during the last two years has been $6,000, "and this money," he said, "has gone for repairs when the machine was smashed up on joy rides, or when Lane has taken his friends out for a spin. The city does not know how to take care of its own money. The only way to find out is to go out on Sunday afternoons and count them as they come in on joy rides to Waiwae."

We want to give you a business administration," Ayres concluded. "We want a liquor license out here," he said.

William McClellan, candidate for supervisor, said that when the last Democratic board of supervisors went out of office the ways and means committee, of which he was a member, had a cash balance in every department. He explained that there was about $65,000 left in the cash balance and alone. He went on to say that the present board has had approximately $285,000 more to spend than the last board.

Supervisors

And when this board goes out of office at the end of June," he added, "I will leave a deficit of between $35,000 and $50,000, and I want to know what the people are going to do about it. This board has really spent money that belongs to the incoming board."

A straightforward talk was given by Deputy Sheriff Julius Asch, a candidate for city treasurer. He scored the present administration, and promised that, if elected, he would give the city a full eight hours of his time every day.

John T. Carey, who is running for supervisor, also spoke at the Moiliili meeting.

Attorney Joseph Lightfoot, the principal speaker at the Liliuokalani school meeting, scored Mayor Lane for piling up a $35,000 entertainment account in two years.

It looks very much like Mayor Lane will be riding on a donkey instead of in an automobile after July 5," he said, "and it will be a Democratic donkey at that."

He dwelt at length on two items that he said were included in the mayor's entertainment account—$300 for cigars and $500 for pigs.

Mayor, Sustained Community

He said the mayor had given a $100 bill for a distinguished Easterner that had cost the city a cool $300, assuming that J. J. Fern, when he was mayor, did not spend as much in his 10 years in office as Lane has spent in one month. He told the voters that the time had come for them to "open their eyes."

"Anyone who would graft like that should be out working on a rock crusher for you and I," he added.

John Blum, candidate for auditor, told the audience that the time had come for a change in some of the city and county offices, and that other men should be given a chance. Sheriff Charles H. Rose, candidate for reelection, told of many responsible positions he has held and, among other things, promised the people of the district a branch police station if he is allowed to continue in office.

Former Mayor Fern, who is again running for the office which he held for six years, declared he had run the government economically and that, when he left office, the board of supervisors transferred $36,000 to the incoming board.

"Today," he said, "this board has been in office for two years and is in debt $168,000. Every year the board has worked with a surplus."

He also scored the present mayor for the amount he has expended for entertainment.

Democratic candidates tonight will head forth at Waiwae.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Excelsior Lodge, I. O. O. F., meets this evening.

Honolulu Lodge, F. and A. M., has special meeting tonight.

Henry W. Kinney, superintendent of public instruction, has left for Maui and will be gone about a week.

H. Culman Co., formerly at the corner of Fort and Hotel streets, has moved to 1112 Fort street, opposite the Honolulu Music Company. The change was caused by the contemplated widening of Hotel street.

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's guild and woman's auxiliary was to be held at the parish building this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Annual reports were read and the officers for the coming year elected.

The local U. S. civil service commission announces that a competitive examination will be held June 20 in the custom house for the position of timekeeper. Industrial department, naval station, pay $2.50 a day.

Charles E. Hansen, a private in the 32d Infantry, Company I, was injured last night and treated at the emergency hospital after he had collided with a telephone pole hook.

George Collins, city and county engineer, said this morning that the paving of Beretania street is expected to be finished by Lord-Young Engineering Company this week and the extension and paving of Smith street will begin next week.

For a discussion of important business of the Republican Club of the 13th precinct, fifth district, will meet this evening, May 3, at 7:30 o'clock at the home of J. R. Galt, 2325 Liliha street. All Republicans are expected to attend and visitors invited to join the club.

The Maui Publishing Co. has filed in circuit court an exception to the decision of a jury in finding for the plaintiff in the case of Eugene Murphy against the Maui News for the sum of $1000. The company asks for a transcript of the evidence. It is believed it will appeal.

Huber Rescues Soldier From Enraged Crowd

The timely appearance of United States District Attorney Huber at a critical moment last night in a mob gathered near the Palama theater on King street undoubtedly saved a soldier from a more serious mauling if not from death.

As it was the man, R. R. Biggs, Co. M, 3d Inf., was severely beaten when the audience of the theater rushed out en masse and captured him after a brief bottle, which was thought to have been thrown by him, sent through the front entrance and struck Mrs. A. B. Correa, a patron of the theater, on the neck.

Huber was out for a ride in his car with his family and friends when he saw the disturbance. Hastily alighting, he made his way to the center of the mob where he found Biggs lying prostrate. The district attorney ordered the mob back and dragged the bleeding victim to his car where he remained until Policeman Ed. Rose came in answer to a riot call sent to the police station.

Biggs was treated at the emergency hospital and turned over to the military authorities. Mrs. Correa also received treatment for a cut on the neck.

GUARD OFFICIALS FROM OUTSIDE ISLANDS HERE

Major P. W. P. Blissett, 3d Battalion, 2d Infantry, National Guard, is in town for a few days from Kohala. Guard affairs are in good shape on the Big Island, according to the officer.

Lieut. G. J. Ganser, inspector-instructor of the 4th Infantry, Kauai, is also in the city, being here to take the examination for promotion to which he was recently ordered. Lieut. Ganser believes Kauai has all such vacancies in guard organizations as will be made through the dependent order for discharge. Many of the Garden Islanders are anxious to come to Oahu for a period of training.

MANY PEDAGOGUES ON MAINLAND SEEK JOBS

That hundreds of mainland teachers want to come to Hawaii and live is evidenced by the hundreds of letters Supdt. Henry W. Kinney is receiving each week from pedagogues. Each mail, he says, brings more than 100 applications and his stenographers are being kept busy answering all of them. Kinney says that quite a number of mainland teachers probably will be employed in the territorial schools during the next school term. He expects that the enrolment of pupils will increase to 34,000 by the middle of September.

HOUSE JOURNAL WILL SOON BE COMPLETED

It was announced today that the journal of the house of representatives of the ninth legislature will be completed, printed and bound within the specified time, which is 30 days after the close of the session. The journal clerk and his assistants are working day and night. As soon as the journal is completed copies will be sent to the members of the legislature as well as to certain other designated officials.

Captain John J. Phelps, son of the late William W. Phelps, United States minister to Germany, was enrolled with the commission of ensign in the United States navy.

Lester Woodley of New York was nominated by President Wilson to be collector of the State Department to succeed Cone Johnson of Texas, who recently resigned.

LANE INSISTS CREDIT IS DUE FOR BIG IMPROVEMENTS NOW UNDER WAY

That more than $2,500,000 of permanent road improvements are under way, all being carried out on the basis of the direct frontage tax, is the answer of Mayor John C. Lane to the critics of the present administration who endeavor to make a point that little road work has been accomplished.

In addition to this a score of other improvements have been decided on and work will start before the end of May, such as a sewer system for Kalihi and other districts of the city, declares the mayor. A filtering plant for Nuuanu is also under contemplation and plans have been made to establish such a plant as soon as the next tax receipt is available.

Much Work Well Along

In the last report of City and County Engineer Collins it is shown that $1,473,750 of road improvements under the frontage tax statute are well on the way. It includes three sections of

COHEN TALKS TO IRON WORKS MEN

Declaring that it was his intention to be a mayor who would guard the interests of all the people and that he would especially make an effort to bring capital and labor closer together for the harmony and prosperity of the city, J. C. Cohen, aspirant for the nomination of mayor, spoke to more than 200 employees of the Honolulu Iron Works at noon today.

Candidate Cohen called attention to the lack of permanent roads and sidewalks and to the fact that the state of war made it necessary for all the people of Honolulu to rally under the flag to conserve the resources of the territory. He spoke at length on the finances of the city and pointed to the fact that it was time that the affairs of the city should be conducted according to modern business methods.

Meetings in the interest of Cohen will be held this evening at the Moiliili schoolhouse and at Mokapu road in the ninth precinct of the fifth district.

War conditions and high prices of living have not affected the collection of taxes to any marked extent, according to officials at the territorial office this morning, who said that about the usual number of payments for property taxes are being made.

Delinquents become delinquent next Tuesday. As is usually the case, the smaller property holders are paying early. Big property holders prefer to wait until near the end of the time limit, probably to let their money work as long as possible before going into the territorial coffers.

Automobile owners probably hold the record for delay in making payments. It was said today at the tax office that very few men had paid their 1917 auto taxes so far. No action is ascribed for this, but in view of the new law allowing seizure of the vehicles for payment it is an interesting fact. Army officers, probably because they believed some relief from taxation would be afforded by the recent legislature, are prominent among those who have not paid.

Registration for the primary election, May 19, closes today. The county clerk's office will remain open until midnight to accommodate the people who have failed to register. The office, however, will be closed between four and seven o'clock.

According to Henry Van Geison, deputy clerk who has charge of the books, the registration for this election is a record breaker. He estimates that already over 11,000 have signed the big book. The voters have come in so fast, he says, that it has been impossible to keep an exact count. At the last, the bond election, the total of voters registered was a few over 10,000.

TWO REPUBLICAN MEETINGS DRAW OUT GOOD CROWDS

Candidates for Reelection Make Statements of Claims and Mott-Smith Wins Friends

Most of the candidates confined themselves to generalities, but between Ben Hollinger and William Larson there is discord evident which cropped out last night. Hollinger claimed that he was instrumental in having salaries of all the laborers raised. He then went on to tell what else he had done for the poor people, pointing out the zoo at Kapiolani park and the school houses and parks that had been improved through him.

He declared he was not afraid of anything he had done because whatever he had done was for the poor man. He ended by calling on them to vote for island-born boys.

Says Whole Board Did It

Larson, following Hollinger, denied these claims, declaring that when the board was raising salaries others entirely forgot the poor man but that he had demanded that the laborers' pay be raised. "They couldn't object," he said, "because I had them where the wool was short. Aside from that, however," he said, "no one man can do what a recent speaker has claimed he has done. Whatever is done is with the consent of the entire board and if any man tells you differently he is trying to fool you."

Logan Makes Comparisons

Dan Logan told what the Republican administration had done in comparison to the last Democratic administration. He denied the charge that the Republicans had been extravagant. He showed how much more money they had spent for permanent improvements.

William Ahia demanded that a Hawaiian be elected to the board of supervisors. "If you do not elect me at least choose some other Hawaiian, for it is proven that they can do just as good work as the whole," he said.

Mott-Smith Makes Friends

At School street E. A. Mott-Smith, candidate for supervisor, made friends with the children by first telling them a story. He said that his little daughter's friend had told her father that if he did not vote for Mr. Mott-Smith she would stick a pin into him. At both meetings he declared that governing is a trade just as plumbing and carpentry. "My trade is governing," he said, "and although I have been secretary of the territory and held other important positions I am not hokoneo (proud), but will listen to the complaints of every man whether rich or poor."

Seven Knows Business

J. Ashman Beaven, candidate for supervisor, said that of all the businesses in Honolulu that of the government was the greatest and should have honest men in charge, men with brains and business sense. He said on the mainland he had been elected to the position of supervisor and may or several times and knew the "government business." A. M. Brown, city attorney, asked that the voters elect him at the primaries.

W. C. Achi, candidate for supervisor, pointed out that the next board will have much more money to spend and there should be good men on the board. He said he had been in the legislature and knew how to handle money.

Other men who spoke were John C. Lane, Robert Horner, Archie E. Kehoe, Edward Hopkins, Edgar Henriques, Joseph Lutz, James Bicknell and John H. Wise.

An order was placed by the Boston Committee on Public Safety for six machine guns, which will be turned over to the City Police Department.
